Abstract

Objective: This study evaluated the effect of food-simulating solutions, brushing and staining on color stability of different composite resins.

Materials and methods: Eighty specimens (Voco), Filtek Z350XT (3M/ESPE), Filtek P90 (3M/ESPE) were immersed in food-simulating media for 7 days: artificial saliva, coffee solution, and dye solution (C4). Each specimen was submitted to 10,950 brushing cycles and then immersed in coffee solution for 7 days. The specimens were darkened with coffee solution at 37°C for 7 days. The color was assessed by spectrophotometry, using ColorChecker Munsell Color Services Lab. Each specimen was measured at baseline (C1) and after the treatments (food-simulating media immersion, brushing, and dye solution/C4). Data were analyzed by two-way repeated measures ANOVA and Tukey's post-hoc test.

Reflecting on 40 years of Maritime Policy & Management

Introduction
HEATHER MCLAUGHLIN

In this Special Issue, we reflect on the 40 years of the journal's history. The journal has made a significant contribution to the field of maritime policy and management through its founding editors, James McConville and Alistair Couper, who published the first issue in 1973. The journal has since become a leading international journal in the field, publishing research on ports and ship operations and have a continuing association with the journal as reviewers and contributors.

The journal Maritime Policy & Management (MPM), the flagship journal of international shipping and port research, now has well over 500 international reviewers, publishes seven issues a year and is read by thousands of academics, maritime practitioners, government officials and journalists around the world through online subscriptions. Last year, we obtained our first impact factor (0.743) in the Transportation category of SSCI, which has led to a dramatic increase in submissions.

It would be remiss of me if I did not use this issue to express my sincere thanks to everyone involved in the journal's long history and continued success—authors, reviewers, administrators, editors and editorial board members. We are also grateful for the administrative support from a number of universities, and particularly to Chung Ang University, where the journal currently resides with my co-editor, Professor Kevin Li. Finally, a sincere thank you to our publishers, Taylor and Francis, for their professionalism and encouragement over the last 40 years.

The Origins of Maritime Policy & Management
JAMES MCCONVILLE

of Maritime Economics in Western Europe were laid in the aftermath of when academics started looking beyond the traditional fields of shipping
